

YOU'RE IN BOSTON

Boston's Anthem (With dance theme Preview)

If you want to rock in Boston, you need this because...
You're not part of the Massachusetts family until you own
"YOU'RE IN BOSTON"!

Written and performed by Wendy Roy (www.wendysings.com)
Produced by Andrew Pittman and Wendy Roy
Recorded at Mortal Music Studios (www.MortalMusic.net)

© Wendy Roy 2007. All Rights Reserved

Talented Bear Music/ Mortal Music Productions / www.wendysings.com

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: August 22, 2007

BOSTON'S ANTHEM DEBUT!

Boston, MA (August 22, 2007)

It would seem that the residents of Boston have it all: The Red Sox, the best colleges around, great culture, progressive healthcare, and beautiful trees and flowers adorning chic metropolitan streets. To top it all off, they now have their own anthem as well!

The writer of the song, "You're in Boston", is Wendy Roy (www.wendysings.com); an accomplished vocalist whose voice has been heard through venues such as Fenway Park and NBC. Roy decided it was high time that Bostonians had their very own song to sing along with.

"Boston has such a unique and devoted sense of community... I felt that we deserved our own special gift to reward that accomplishment, and this anthem, especially through its lyric, provides us with a great gift: A strong feeling of belonging", Roy says.

Indeed it does. And there will probably come a time in the very near future when you won't truly be a part of the Massachusetts family until you own "You're in Boston", playing the fun song as a tradition before attending Boston games, or just prior to going out on the weekends.

Ah yes...welcome to Massachusetts.

"You're in Boston" will be available on iTunes (through www.wendysings.com and www.itunes.com) and select Boston stores by the end of the month.

###